

Data Privacy Statement

Respecting your right to privacy underpins the work that we do and our core values of safety, caring, integrity, and respect for people. This means that we are committed to ensure we protect your private life and personal data entrusted to us while conducting our business dealings with our employees, customers, partners, and the communities in which we operate.

We are committed to complying with the EU General Data Protection Regulation, UK General Data Protection Regulation, and the national data protection laws in the countries where we operate. These regulations outline the legal provisions which governs how we collect and use personal data, including individual's rights in relation to their personal data.

Read our Privacy Policy to learn more about our privacy and data protection practices.